CyberHoot Wins American Cyber Award's Start-Up of the Year

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Portsmouth, NH - September 2020 – CyberHoot announced today that the American Cyber Awards, a respected international award organization, has named CyberHoot the winner of 'Start-Up of the Year' in the 1st Annual American Cyber Awards.

The American Cyber Awards reviews the industry, searching for those who are pushing the boundaries in the fight against cybercrime. They encourage all those, who are committed to progressing the industry, to apply. Their judges come from varied backgrounds, and are some of the most well-regarded individuals within the industry.

CyberHoot won Gold for Startup of the Year in Cybersecurity.

"This honor for CyberHoot is for the entire team of engineers, sales, and support staff. Collectively, we've been recognized by peers in cybersecurity and named the #1 startup by American Cyber Awards for our incredible efforts," said Craig Taylor. "This validates our approach to empowering MSPs and SMBs with the awareness they need to fight cybercrime. Awareness builds security!"

About the American Cyber Awards

The Cyber Security Awards started in the UK but noticed an increasing number of American organizations traveling to take part. They had so many applications, they decided to start new awards, totally dedicated to US organizations and professionals. They are a totally independent event, having no affiliation to any magazines, organizations, or products. As a result, their industry leading judges are able to make all their decisions on merit alone.
